

Distinguished Scientists,

We have started an international book project named “Post-Pandemic International System and Globalization” with Peter Lang Publishing House. We are sending you the details of our project (sample topics, dates, etc.) below. If you would like to write a chapter for the book, please send your chapter proposals and CV’s to editor@inglobe.org.

You can find details and call for chapter in attachment.

Sincerely

EDITORS

Ali AYATA, Prof. Dr.

Sabri AYDIN, Prof. Dr.

PUBLICATION COORDINATOR

Ragıp PEHLİVANLI (InGlobe Academy)

LANGUAGE OF THE BOOK

English

IMPORTANT DATES

Chapter Proposals Deadline : July 30, 2021
Acceptance Notification : August 30, 2021
Full Text Deadline : August 30, 2021
Expected Publication Date : 2021

SUBMISSION PROCEDURE

Submission procedure of international book, which is planned to publish with partnership of Peter Lang Publishing House, one of the biggest and high reputed publishing houses based in Germany and has many publishing offices in major cities of the world (Bern, Bruxelles, New York, Oxford, Warszawa, Wien), is given below. Peter Lang is indexed in Sense Ranking of Academic Publishers’ category of C-Publishers with recognised publishers such as CAB International Publishing, New York University Press and Prentice Hall.

- 1) Chapter proposals should be between 1,000 to 2,000 words including type of research, approach, context, connection to the book, and other pertinent information with word (docx) format. Authors should send proposals to editor@inglobe.org until the dates shown above.
- 2) Chapter proposals should include names, work and titles, mailing addresses, email addresses and phone numbers of authors in same word file.
- 3) Biographies of authors should be added with authors’ name-surname information, maximum 150 words, to end of proposal word document in same file.

4) Authors should follow acceptance, proofreading and decline announcements and answer in time.

5) Chapters should be between 15-20 pages. Authors should use Times New Roman font with 12 pt, justified and double-spaced. Page format should be A4 and 2,5 cm indentation from left, right, top and bottom. Please note that it is not necessary to insert page numbers.

6) The chapter title should be first letters capitalized only, centered, bold and 16 pt, and needs be short and reflect the work. Authors should also create a short title to be used as a header in the book.

Sample title and its short version:

Title: A Conceptual Evaluation of Personality and the Internal Sources of Emotion in Service Enterprises

Short title: A Conceptual Evaluation in Service Enterprises

Just above the title of the chapter, the authors should only add the Name-Surname information; academic title, contact information, etc. should not be written.

Subtitles should be numbered starting from the introduction; it should be justified, bold, Times New Roman 16 pt and double-spaced with only the first letters capitalized. Sample:

- 1 Introduction
  - 2 What Is Personality?
  - 3 Personality Traits and Big Five
  - 4 What Is Emotion?
  - 5 Personality and Emotion
  - 6 Internal Sources of Emotion
- Conclusion
Bibliography

After the heading, the first paragraph should not be indented, but the following paragraphs should be indented 1,25cms. There should be no space between paragraphs.

7) If the quotations are longer than 3 lines, the quote should be written within 2 indentation from right and left sides and in italics.

8) Notes section should be written after the result before the bibliography.

9) The current APA format should be taken into account in citation and bibliography. When citing in the text, the ampersand (&) should be use just before the last author's last name. While citing references in the bibliography, 'and' should be written instead of ampersand (&).

Sample in the text:

..... are substantially related to emotional dispositions (Reisenzein & Weber, 2009: 54).

Sample in the bibliography:

Reisenzein, R. and Weber, H. (2009), Personality and Emotion, In P. J. Corr and G. Matthews, (Eds.), The Cambridge Handbook of Personality Psychology (pp. 54--71), New York: Cambridge University Press.

10) The font size for the titles of Tables, Figures, Charts should be Times New Roman 10 and bold. The font size of the inner letter of the table should be Times New Roman 9. If the table does not fit, it can be 8 pt. The title of the figures/charts should be aligned to left and under the shape. In case of table, figure, chart or picture citation, the citation should be given as "e.g.: Source: Cloninger, 2009: 4". Both tables and figures are identified with Arabic numerals, followed with a very brief one-line descriptive title (about 10 words).

Sample Biography

Elbeyi PELİT was born in Gümüşhane/Turkey in 1978. He completed his primary, secondary and high school education in Gümüşhane. He received his bachelor's, master's degree in tourism management from Sakarya University and doctoral degree in tourism management education from Gazi University. Working in the fields of Tourism, Tourism Education, Tourism Management, Human Resources Management in Tourism and Tourism policy, Professor Elbeyi PELİT has published many articles, papers, books and book chapters in these fields and is the editor of the Journal of Tourist Guide, Journal of Contemporary Tourism Research and Afyon Kocatepe University Journal of Social Sciences (Turkey). He is still working at the Afyon Kocatepe University Faculty of Tourism.

CALL FOR CHAPTERS

With the global problems created by the new type of coronavirus (Covid-19) pandemic, which has rapidly affected the whole world, a new order has been taken where the concept of normal has begun to be questioned. As the pandemic gained a global character and affected every aspect of life, from economy to social relations, it was inevitable that it would have transformative effects on global politics. This pandemic, which dominates international relations and has the capacity to change the system, is the biggest epidemic disease the world has faced after the Spanish Flu in 1918, which is estimated to have killed fifty million people, and perhaps the biggest experience that affected the whole world after World War II.

Covid-19 will undoubtedly affect international relations and the international system. The extent of this effect will be determined by the duration of the epidemic and the damage it will cause. It is clear that developments such as the global economic recession, the strengthening of authoritarianism, the spread of remote working and digitalization in business and social life, the increase in the shares allocated to health and emergency planning in state budgets will show themselves in the short term. It is obvious that such developments will have a direct impact on the shaping of international relations and the global order after Covid-19. For example, attitudes such as an increase in authoritarian and populist tendencies, skepticism regarding multiculturalism, the increasing importance and elevation of state borders, the strengthening of isolationist attitudes, and the questioning of the reasons for the existence of the European Union and some other international organizations are expected to prevail in the post-Covid-19 order. For this reason, the course of the discussion regarding the post-Covid-19 period will change in line with the scale of the transformation and whether it will cause systemic shifts in the global sense, rather than whether the transformation will occur.

For example, it is noteworthy that the EU, which is the most important supranational structure and economic and political integration model, was late in responding to the crisis, did not have a suitable mechanism to combat the crisis, and that its leading members such as Germany and France put their national security first. The fact that they left a member state like Italy, which had a very difficult time at the beginning of the pandemic, alone and the closure of national borders caused both the EU to be questioned and the 'One Europe' understanding to be greatly damaged.

It is expected that the necessity of protecting the borders of the country will come to the fore again and the nation-state regaining its importance will weaken the formations such as the EU. In addition, while the effects of the pandemic are getting stronger in the west, it is expected that China's overcoming this problem will cause western values and management understanding to be questioned.

Although the Corona virus, which started in the Wuhan province of China, initially seemed like an ordinary epidemic, it was later understood that it was not. This study plans to deal with the possible effects of the epidemic, which has already become a global health disaster in terms of its consequences, with socioeconomic and political characteristics at the international level. In this context, in this study, what kind of effects the coronavirus has in the international system, how states react to it, the effects of globalization in the spread of the epidemic, which factors will be prioritized if a possible system change is made, possible post-epidemic international systems and models, international organizations and states' influence areas and transformations Topics will be prioritized.

We invite researchers to contribute to the international study prepared for this purpose. Thank you in advance for your cooperation and contributions and wish you success in your works.

Editorial Board